Programs/Initiatives

- Designated in 1995, the Chicago HIDTA addresses the disruption and dismantling of major illicit drug trafficking organizations as well as the accompanying violence, crime and socio-economic decay associated with illegal drugs. The Chicago effort focuses on improving information and intelligence-sharing, coordination, interdiction and disruption of the drug trade affecting Cook County. The Chicago HIDTA includes Cook county, the City of Chicago and 102 suburban municipalities with a total population of approximately 5.2 million.³
- The Office of National Drug Control Policy awarded 5 community coalitions in Illinois between $50,000 and $100,000 for drug prevention under the FY 1999 Drug Free Community Support Program. The grantees were:
 - City of Aurora - $100,000
 - Northwest Austin Council - $100,000
 - Sarah Bush Lincoln Health Foundation - $50,208
 - St. Clair County Health Department - $100,000
 - YWCA of the Quad Cities - $100,000⁴
- The Cook County Juvenile Court Drug Program was implemented October 21, 1996 in the Austin and Lawndale communities of Chicago, IL, which comprise the 11th and 15th police districts. It uses the deferred prosecution model of drug court. The projected average length of stay in the program is nine months for each minor. Program benchmarks will be established to monitor the minor's progress with clinical interventions. Incentives will also be established to recognize the minor's progress and offer incremental step-down treatment and supervision.

The Program Objectives are:

- The development of a network of community-based drug treatment agencies for minors who have exhibited delinquent behavior related to the abuse of illegal substances.
- The implementation a continuum of intervention strategies for minors and their families that address both potential risk to the community and the individual treatment needs.
- The identification specific outcome behaviors for participating minors and evaluate program impact on same (i.e., school attendance, establish a percentage for recidivism on related charges while in the program, establish a percentage of minors who will successfully complete the drug program, establish a percentage for recidivism of participating minors six months upon completion of the program.)
- The implementation of expedited case processing and drug intervention strategies for minors participating in the grant program.
- The development of appropriate screening/assessment instruments with the enrollment and participation of approximately 300 minors during the grant period. Supplement existing County/Circuit Court drug intervention programs.

Unique Aspects of Drug Court:

- The Approved Provider Network consists of a collaboration of indigenous, licensed clinical agencies, as well as specialized services that were not already available in the Austin community, i.e., short-term residential treatment. It provides various appropriate levels of outpatient treatment and counseling and related family interventions and services.
 - The Management Information System is a micro-based computer system (LAN - Local Area Network) that has the capacity to collect and transfer required data elements received from the referral source, assessment agencies, treatment providers, and court personnel servicing the Juvenile Court Drug Program.
 - Community Outreach. A strong collaborative community-based network of service providers and community organizations supports this new program. The Chicago Board of Education has approved the utilization of the Austin High School as the hub for social and program activities related to this grant. The initiative has also worked with the Chicago Police Department-Youth Division to solicit their support and access information relative to the minors participating in this program.⁵
- In 1992 and early 1993, funding from the Anti-Drug Abuse Act through the Illinois Criminal Justice Information Authority enabled the Illinois Attorney General's Office and the Illinois State Police (ISP) to undertake four interrelated initiatives to address illegal drug sales. These initiatives consisted of a Cash Transaction Reporting Unit (CTRU) and a Drug Conspiracy Task Force (DCTF) in each agency.

The CTRUs were designed to collect, store, and analyze cash transaction data for subsequent identification, investigation, and prosecution of individuals involved in drug-related money laundering. The CTRU operated by ISP was designed to assist in multijurisdictional investigations and included a database for the identification of suspected offenders. The reporting unit operated by the Attorney General's Office provided prosecutorial expertise to support the investigation and prosecution of drug traffickers.

The two units were designed to complement one another and also assist the DCTFs operated by both agencies. The task forces were organized to enhance the investigation of mid-level drug-trafficking conspiracies operating across jurisdictional boundaries. Similar to the CTRU, the ISP Drug Conspiracy Task Force handled the investigations of traffickers, while the task force maintained by the Attorney General's Office provided prosecutorial support. Originally, the units from both agencies were based in the Chicago area, but the ISP task force has since moved to Springfield.⁶

Drugs⁹

➤ Cocaine/Crack

Crack cocaine dominates inner city street sales in the Chicago area. In 1998 one kilogram of cocaine sold for between $18,000-$24,000 in Chicago. Smaller amounts of cocaine sell for $40-$50 for a gram and $90-$150 for a 1/8 of an ounce. The sale price of crack cocaine in the Chicago area ranges between $5-$20 depending on the size of the rocks. The Illinois State Police crime labs indicate the purity of 2-25 grams of cocaine to be between 60-70% from 1991 through 1996. In 1997 the purity fell to 51% for 2-25 grams of cocaine. The Illinois State Police seized 552 kilograms of cocaine in 1997.

Besides alcohol, cocaine is the most frequent reason for clients to enter a treatment program in the Chicago area. The number of people admitted for cocaine treatment rose 3% from 32,289 in 1997 to 33,382 in 1998.

➤ Heroin

The most popular form of heroin in the Chicago area is white heroin, although brown and black tar heroin can be obtained. Heroin is sold in $10 and $20 units at the street level. Larger amounts of heroin in Chicago sell for $160-$175 for a gram and $36,000-$40,000 for a kilogram of China white. The average purity of heroin in Chicago was 31% in 1997. There were 13,404 admissions for heroin in FY 1997 a 2% increase over the number of admissions in FY 1996.

➤ Marijuana

Marijuana use in Chicago is on the rise and marijuana is available in an array of prices and varieties. Marijuana ranges in price from $1,000-$2,500 for a pound to $100-$200 for an ounce. On the street in Chicago marijuana is generally sold in $5, $10, and $20 bags. The number of marijuana treatment admissions in Chicago rose from 12 percent of all admissions in FY 1996 to 17 percent of admissions in FY 1997.
